STUDENTS TO PRESENT OPERETTA FOR CHRISTMAS

Lower Makefield Schools Prepare for Program for Tomorrow Evening

PUBLIC IS INVITED

WOODSIDE, Dec. 19.—An operetta entitled "Susanna's Christmas Auction" is to be the presentation of students of Lower Makefield public schools, tomorrow evening in Makefield school auditorium. This function is open to the public.

The story centers around Susanna, a stubborn child who learns the meaning of kindness only after her parents hold an auction at which her favorite toys are sold.

Various dances and choruses lend interest to the entertainment.

Santa Claus Enters Second Story Window at School

HULMEVILLE, Dec. 19.—Santa Claus surprised members of the Hulmeville-Middletown Parent-Teacher Association, last evening, when he entered a second-story window, carrying into the meeting room a large sack of gifts.

These gifts were distributed on an exchange basis, each member having taken a package to the session. Santa Claus was impersonated by Mrs. Rex Hunter. Decorated trees were in each classroom, and small white trees also enhanced the tables in the cafeteria, where refreshments were served later.

Carols were sung by the gathering, with the secretary, Miss Margaret Perry, as pianist. Mrs. Joseph Mucklow presided during business transaction.

The sum of $90.58 was reported as cleared on the November card party, this report being given by Russell Haines. Another such party is planned for February, the proceeds to be used toward defraying expenses of all-day educational trips for the scholars. A donation was made toward the cafeteria fund.

A petition was signed by the organization group, asking the county commissioners to back the circulating library plan in Bucks county.

The 28 present enjoyed a variety of holiday games, with Miss Dorothy Thuss in charge. Mrs. Richard Gledhill and Mrs. Mucklow were winners of prizes.

When the group adjourned to the cafeteria they found attractively decorated tables, with trim of miniature trees and lighted candles. Favors were candy trees and Santa Claus taffies. Nut-bread sandwiches, holiday cookies, ice cream, coffee were served.

Just a few of the many items suggested by merchandising establishments in Bristol. Thousands of gifts have been placed on display in the windows, on shelves, and in display cases of stores locally, making shopping in Bristol a distinct pleasure. "Do your Christmas Shopping in Bristol" is the 1940 holiday slogan.

"Bringing in the Boar's Head," suggested by olden Yuletide customs, and the song of yore, suggests Christmases far different than we moderns enjoy.

But no doubt Christmas seasons down through the ages have been just as merry, regardless of custom in either food or gift-giving. The "styles" in all things may and do change, but the spirit of joy, happiness, and good will to mankind everywhere which came at the time of the birth of Him whose birthday is approaching, still pervades every walk of life. It is merely the outward signs that have experienced a change.

Warns of Invasion Danger

London, Dec. 19.—A new warning that the danger of a German invasion of Britain is "ever present" was voiced by Prime Minister Churchill today before the House of Commons.

Churchill served notice on Italy that the British offensive in North Africa had barely begun, and stated British losses in the Western Desert offensive are less than 1,000 men.

Ships Collide; Reach Safe Harbor

New York, Dec. 19.—The U. S. S. Arkansas, a 26,000-ton warship, and the Melrose, a 5,148-ton freighter owned by the New England Coke Co., of Boston, which collided early today about 50 miles off the New Jersey coast, reached New York Harbor safely today.

The Melrose, shipping water in three compartments, made for Brooklyn. She appeared to be badly damaged as she passed quarantine in the lower New York harbor.

The Arkansas tied up in the Hudson River along Riverside Drive.

The ships rammed each other about 3 a. m. off Asbury Park in what Coast Guard officials said was good weather.

Fires in Wake of Retreating Italians

Athens, Dec. 19.—Leaving fire and destruction in their wake, Italian troops today retreated from the vital Chimara-Tepelini defense route in South Central Albania and started to fall back toward Valona, one of the two main seaports still in Italian hands.

Bayonet-waving Greek troops overran the Italian left wing at the important junction of Klisura after capturing a range of hills dominating the town. The Italians were obliged to abandon defense positions at the eastern entrance to Klisura.

Reconnaissance flights by Greek and British airplanes disclosed gigantic fires raging in various villages north of Tepelini, indicating the Italians were burning whatever material they are compelled to leave behind.

Military sources in Athens said that operations were developing satisfactorily on the entire front. Greek victories of the last three days may prove the Italians' inability to consolidate their stand anywhere in Albania, it was said.

Honorable mention was accorded Richard Huber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Huber, Trumbauersville, at a meeting of the Boy Scout troop of that borough. Richard was cited for his action in removing the infant from danger while firemen were fighting a fire at the Hinkle home. Scout Huber also turned in the alarm.

At a meeting of Doylestown Borough Council held on Monday evening December 18, plans for a new addition to the fire house, which may cost between $5,000 and $6,000, Council went on record approving the idea and will enact his action in removing the infant from danger while firemen were fighting a fire at the Hinkle home. Harold Mann, Perkasie, suffered a second fracture of his right leg when he fell at Elm Terrace Hospital, Lansdale, Thursday.

Mann broke his leg the first time in an automobile accident on September 7th. He was planning to leave the hospital on Sunday, but the second accident prevented that.

There was wide distribution of kitchen cabinets on the Lackawanna Trail on Tuesday, when a large truck loaded with such accessories upset.

The truck was driven by Lawrence Cummings, 28, Philadelphia, and owned by Jacob Levine, 204 North Second street, Philadelphia. The cabinets were being transported to Syracuse, N. Y., but were strewn over the highway, blocking traffic for some time, when the big truck turned over.

The truck was wrecked badly, but the driver escaped with a few scratches. The truck ran off the highway and struck a small stone bridge which caused it to overturn. Private Unger, of the Doylestown sub-station of Motor Police, investigated.

A resident of Neshaminy, Frank Mueller, Jr., is being held by Schuylkill police, on a hit-and-run charge. The charge is preferred by officers of Tamaqua detail of motor police, who stated the driver failed to halt after striking two men who were standing by their wrecked machine near Allentown.

The victims of the accident are: Dr. Bernard Rover, Tamaqua; and Charles Borsoli, Bethlehem. The latter has fractures of both jaws, and lost several teeth. Dr. Rover had an injury to his left elbow.

STATE GETS DEED TO CANAL PROPERTY; BRISTOL TO EASTON

Senator Howard L. James and Representatives Stockham, Yeakel Sponsored Bills

OPPOSITION IN SENATE

Senator James Met Unexpected Opposition To Bill But Succeeded in Having it Passed

The picturesque Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal, extending from Bristol to a point above Easton, was taken over by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania today.

Secretary of Forests and Waters, G. Albert Stewart, yesterday signed a deed for the property, transferring the title from Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company to the state, free of cost.

Transfer of the deed marked the end of a campaign begun in March, 1939. Bills were introduced in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives by Bucks county representatives, Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville; and Wilson L. Yeakel, of Perkasie. Senator Howard L. James, of Bristol, initiated the necessary legislation in the Senate.

The bills met with favor in the House of Representatives, and passed without opposition, but a very strong opposition developed in the Senate from some of the departments of the Commonwealth. Senator James, however, fought vigorously for the passage of the legislation, and after considerable difficulty overcame the opposition, with the result that the bill passed the Senate.

The legislation under which the Commonwealth takes title to the canal property provides that the Secretary of Forests and Waters may under proper procedure and in accordance with the act, take over such parts of the canal property for development for park purposes.

ALICE WINS AGAIN

In three sports contests women have become distinguished, some of them internationally famous—swimming, golf and tennis. The names are legion; quickly come to mind Helen Wills, Babe Didrikson, Gertrude Ederle, Suzanne Lenglen, Eleanor Sears and many others who dominated their fields. This year the topnotcher is Alice Marble.

In 1939 Alice won the Wimbledon and United States tennis titles; this year she gave an even more remarkable performance and a more outstanding display by repeating in the United States nationals at Forest Hills, and now she comes through with a landslide of votes as No. 1 woman athlete for the second straight year.

In a poll seventy-two sports experts throughout the country participated and they gave the blond Alice top place. There is reported to have been some dispute in the ranks of the commentators, because this would be the fourth time in a row that tennis won first honors in the annual ballot, but they agreed that couldn't be helped.

Alice Marble has won against so much difficult competition in her own field that in the voting she beat the champions in golf, swimming and diving with ease.

LANDIS REMAINS

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, once a judge and perhaps today one of the best assets in the world of sports, has been re-elected by the major baseball leagues as high mogul.

The story from the national meeting in Chicago has many interesting phases, the limiting of night ball, the voting down of another spring all-star game and other settlements of controversial arguments in baseball.

Landis has been voted into office until 1946; his salary is $65,000 a year. K. M. accepted. Who wouldn't?

Regardless of what one thinks of Landis, there can be no question in his mind that baseball is big business and that Landis has given much color to the baseball world. Also—and for that purpose he was hired—there have been no Black Sox scandals in the baseball world since he took hold. The public, the fans who go through the admission gate, have confidence that the game is run on the square.

Some sports events are under suspicion as rackets, rehearsed and controlled. If Landis has helped to keep baseball clean, no fan will begrudge him his due reward.

SENTIMENTAL MUSIC

Some critics do not like what they call sentimental music. If they hear some touching and tender air that seems to tell of love and longing and human affection and to reveal the feeling of hearts throbbing with emotion, they say it is too sentimental, and they pretend to think it is not fit to be heard in concerts aimed to please the musically intelligent.

This is called a hard-boiled age in which sentiment and emotion are at a discount. People are not supposed to entertain these soft feelings so much now, if these critics are to be believed. People are supposed to be more impervious to the shocks of fate. But sentiment and emotion are not dead. They are forces that rule the world, and they will live and be expressed in music that touches the heart long after this hard-boiled and hard-hitting age has passed.

Hold Corn Show And Pie Baking Contest

LANGHORNE, Dec. 19.—A corn show and pie baking contest interested members of Middletown Grange, last evening, when a group of 75, including members and guests, gathered in the memorial house. This was also a Christmas meeting, with special program suitable for the season.

George Yerkes, master of the Grange, after welcoming the visitors, gave a few outstanding facts regarding the founding of the Grange on December 4, 1867, and explained how its functions both as an influence in farm life, and in legislative matters through its legislative committee.

Mrs. Bjarni Bjarnason, the lecturer, was in charge of the Christmas program, the play of the evening being entitled "The Christmas That Bounced." Participants were: Mrs. Harry Ridge, Mrs. Bjarnason, Miss Marie Heston, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Miss Florence Tomlinson, Mrs. Walker Jackson and Howard Yerkes.

"Adeste Fidelis" was the opening group selection, and the closing Christmas number was a dance by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jones, of Upper Darby. Herman Heston, chairman of the corn show committee, introduced the judges, namely: John Thompson, Newport Township; Leslie Kirk and Joseph Stradling, Middletown Township. The judges of the pie baking contests were the wives of these three.

First prize winners in the corn show were: Funks yellow dent, Stanley Twining; hybrid Funks G-218, George Yerkes; and the best exhibit was by Stanley Twining. The pie baking winners were: Apple, 1st, Mrs. Samuel Tomlinson; 2nd, Mrs. Bjarnason; 3rd, Mrs. Samuel Tomlinson; 4th, Mrs. Herman Heston.

A large number of articles were contributed by members as Christmas greetings to the Christ home. These were turned over to Dr. H. C. Terry for distribution.

On the 23rd of January, Mrs. Vishnar Nimbkar (nee Elizabeth Lundy), of Bombay, India, will tell of farming in India. This will be an open meeting in the Memorial House. On the 8th of January the newly-elected officers will be installed by Isaac Gross, of Plumsteadville Grange.

Ambassador Grew Gives Japan Blunt Warning

Tokyo, Dec. 19.—Ambassador Joseph Grew today dealt a staggering blow to Japanese "tongue-in-cheek" diplomacy with the blunt warning that America now is ready to back up her interests in the Orient with direct and uncompromising action.

"America is determined to care for both its obligations and its rights," Grew said.

His speech created a major diplomatic sensation, for it was made at a farewell luncheon for Admiral Nomura, who will leave soon for Washington as Japanese Ambassador.

Grew arose after a politely platitudinous speech by Foreign Minister Matsukata.

On the theme that "actions speak louder than words," the outspoken Ambassador said: "There are some points on which we are in accord—our desire for peace. Other points are open to controversy. I won't deal with those in detail."

"However, I think I must relieve the Foreign Minister of his misapprehension that the interests of the American people in China are largely sentimental."

Well-informed quarters said that Grew was even more stern in a private conversation with Matsukata. The Ambassador was said to have told the Foreign Minister that Japan no longer will be "bothered" by further American protests over alleged violations of American interests in China, and Grew said, by the same token, America will not be satisfied by Japan's policies.

TOADS AID FARMERS

FORTLAND, Ore. — (INS) — Recall the amazing flight of the sea-gulls to Salt Lake City in early days, an army of toads recently came to the rescue of farmers of southeastern Oregon. Slowly moving on masses across field, after field the toads devoured the worms as if they were daily rations.

More and more, Gaby was insinuating herself into this household. It was unusual to see Rupert so gay! With the amazing skill of the Frenchwoman who, from her cradle up, has been trained in the tradition of handling men, Gaby had, with the cleverness that hides art, wangled her way into the good graces of Rupert.

Though the meeting would be horribly painful and embarrassing for Laurel, it was, thought Jean, high time that her mother came back.

She hated herself for having promised Gaby that she wouldn't reveal her identity by letter. But she could urge Laurel to return. Meet her at the boat. Gently break the strange news! And then they'd plan.

Laurel always had plenty of money. Rupert denied her nothing. Maybe Laurel could pay off Gaby? And no one be the wiser?

Jean hated herself more as she admitted honestly to herself that Walter's attentions to the young singer was perhaps the strongest motive in wanting to be rid of her!

Her singing was the high light of the party. Encore followed encore. Not only Walter, but Rupert, was bewitched by Jean's guest.

"And now, Gaby," Walter pleaded, and lots of people heard him, "won't you please sing 'Parlez Moi d'Amour'?"

Standing tall and beautiful, she was in glorious voice. It seemed she sang directly to Walter.

"She looks like Marie Antoinette," Jean heard one man say to another in an aside.

"Yes. The cake-eater?"

"And she's taken a big bite of Jean's cake! Get that?"

They didn't see her. They both grinned. Jean wanted to run to her room and cry her heart out.

"And now may I propose that we drink a toast to our guest of honor?" Rupert called out gaily.

Champagne cocktails were passed, and done ample justice to. Several rounds. A guitarist and concertina player had been engaged for the party, as well as the pianist. The trio broke into a rumba. Gaby insisted that Rupert dance with her. Lately, she fitted her steps to his old-fashioned ones.

"Will you dance with me, Jean?" Walter asked. But there was no eagerness on his face. She complied.

"Causing quite a furor, isn't she?" His keen eyes followed Gaby. "She tells me you've arranged her debut at the Plaza for next week. Am I invited?"

"If you want to, of course. But I thought you'd no use for Cafe Society?" An edge to her tone. He didn't seem to notice that.

"But this is different. Sort of a family affair." What did he mean by that? Had the double-dealing Gaby told?

"I mean, you've received her so wholeheartedly into the family that I'd like to help give her a send-off, and buy my own ticket."

The huge room of the big hotel was packed. The cream of the moneyed, fashionable set had turned out in force for the debut of the exotic young singer.

In a red, off-the-shoulder, hooped gown, with creamy gardenias in her black hair, Gaby looked every inch the aristocrat whose beauty, by the grapevine system, had been bruited about Mayfair.

Jean and her stepfather had a prominent table with ten guests, including Gaby. Rupert's tall, spare frame was elegant in a brand-new evening suit. Shiny had pinned were in again. Gaby had pinned one of her own gardenias in his lapel. He seemed to wear it proudly. His nice eyes shone with approval and admiration as they rested on the house-guest.

Gaby had made herself useful to Rupert in half-a-dozen ways. Flattered him, and played up to his little weaknesses. And it had been just the same with Walter.

As Gaby was starting her fourth number, the spotlight on her, Jean sat up and stared. For in that shaft of light she saw the dark face of Green, "the Gook," owner of The Blue Owl, where Gaby had made her original and very humble debut!

What was he doing here? Had Gaby seen him? If so, she was showing illimitable poise. "And yet he can throw a monkey wrench into the works for her!" Jean told herself, "And serve her right!" Then she remembered her own unfortunate rôle in the drama!

The next dance started. Gaby was partnered by Rupert. Suddenly, a voice in Jean's ear—

It was Green, "the Gook." As the crowd milled about, he said, out of the corner of his mouth: "Well, I've certainly got to hand it to you, Gorky! You landed her in a classy joint! But what's the big idea of promoting her as an old pal? What's back of your racket?"

Jean was horribly startled.

It wasn't so much his appearance—and he looked immaculate and sleek in evening clothes—but the challenge in his questions, the new familiarity that seemed to put them on the same level!

Society girl—and dive owner! She regretted desperately, and not for the first time, that she had ever been fool enough to set foot in The Blue Owl!

The old saws about playing with fire were pretty darn right, though the girls in her crowd had flung them to the discard!

"What's the big idea?" the man repeated with a crooked grin. "Come across!"

"Why should you question me? If I choose to be kind to anyone, does it concern you?" But she looked alarmed. And he saw it.

"Sure it concerns me," he drawled. Was he going to have the effrontery to sit down at the table? Awful if she should be compelled to introduce him to her stepfather! Twice as awful if Rupert discovered he was the owner of the criticized Blue Owl!

Rupert would make short shrift of him. Would order him from the table. And Jean had a keen intuition that a man like Green intended to get a real snub—would always get even! Who knows but she'd be the victim?

"I'm sorry I can't talk now," Her tone implied: "Please leave."

His smile-like eyes narrowed. But his manner was more respectful as he said: "But it's for your own interest, Miss Garrett. If you don't want to speak to me here, will you come out to the bar? It'll look as if we met by accident, see? There's all sorts out there."

She hesitated. Saw Walter approach. That settled it. He must never meet Green, "the Gook."

"Only for a minute, then."

"Sure." As they turned, he slipped an arm in hers. How dare he? But fortunately the crowd was thick. She prayed Walter hadn't seen that familiarity.

Without consulting her, Green ordered a champagne cocktail.

"That's you girls' favorite tipple," he remarked. Was it her fancy, or did the bartender who took the order look with surprise at them?

"And I'll take a cup of coffee," Green added. "I never touch anything stronger. It's bad for business."

She couldn't help saying, sarcastically: "I suppose to keep your wits clear?"

"Sure. Now listen." His voice lowered, and again speaking in that annoying way out of the corner of his mouth: "Count me as a friend. If that dame's putting something over on you, I'm with you."

Jean said haughtily: "I don't understand."

"Sure." His favorite word! "How'd a nice girl like you understand a flossy? What I don't understand is how you ever fell for her."

He must have heard the story Gaby had invented to explain her visit to the Park Avenue home! Jean thought fast. If she confirmed it, it might put a stopper on him, even though he'd be bound to be suspicious.

"Don't you know it turned out that I'd met Gaby before?"

"Sure. In my place in the Village."

"But we'd met in the Sorbonne in Paris once!"

The man laughed. But his eyes didn't laugh. They were curiously glittering.

Jean added desperately: "I was studying there. She was at the Conservatoire, really. A mutual friend introduced us."

"Listen, my dear. You never set eyes on her in your young life till that night she asked me to introduce her to you at my place in the Village!"

"If you're going to be rude, I'm going right back to my party," Jean quietly replied, though her heart was hammering.

"Then I go with you. I'm going to put your old man wise!"

"To what?" She paled. Her breath caught.

"To the fact that a classy girl like you should have no doings with the likes of her!"

"Is it any business of yours how I choose my friends?"

"Sure I'm responsible. Didn't you meet her in my joint?"

A deadlock.

Then Jean summoned courage to tell him: "You're annoyed because she left your employ. That isn't fair. Her voice is so beautiful that she had to get a wider field for it. I gave her the opportunity, and you resent it!"

"I don't give a hoot in Hades where she sings, but you can take it from me you're heading for trouble! She brought you back your gold compact, huh? I made her! I saw her snatch it from you!"

Jean couldn't tell him: "She only took it to have a reason to call at my house."

What she did say was: "You shan't upset her debut! I've taken her under my protection. I'm her sponsor now, and she shall have her triumph."

Admiration tinged with contempt shone in the sloe eyes.

"You're one swell kid, Miss Garrett. But you're backing the wrong horse! It's my belief she got something on you, and is putting the screws on. You tell me what it is, and I'll blow her racket sky high! I've sure got the goods on that dame, and in more ways than one! If you don't spill it, I'm sure going to your stepfather!"

"You wouldn't? Oh, please!" Jean went deathly white. She knew she must give some plausible explanation to stop him telling Rupert things against her half-sister.

She added desperately: "You see, he's forbidden me to go to your place! He'd be simply furious if he knew I was with you at this moment!"

RECIPES: Those Which Interest Women

Feature 'Health' Foods

One would have to go far, far back before finding a generation that had no "health" foods—foods that are "good for you." Mankind has been seeking and devouring such foods for ages, until now we have a legion of them. Milk, spinach, whole wheat, oatmeal, oranges, apples, carrots, lemons—there is no end to our "health" foods. The housewife who serves such foods regularly, in various forms, is wise indeed.

Here are two delicious dishes in which the healthful lemon appears. Have enough lemons on hand to take care of that budding cold, those roughened hands, those necessary garnishes, and then try the following:

English Lemon Cheese

6 eggs, well beaten
2 cups sugar
½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup butter

Cook over hot water until thick. Pour into sterilized glasses. Use for filling for tarts or cakes or as a spread for toast and hot biscuits. Also known as lemon curd or lemon butter. (Makes 2-3 glasses.)

Lemon Mince-meat

½ cup lemon juice
1 cup raisins, scalded, drained and chopped
3 cups finely chopped apple
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup lemon or orange marmalade
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon ginger

Combine ingredients. To make pies, add:

¼ cup melted butter for each pie. May be sealed and kept in sterilized jars. (Makes 1 quart or filling for two pies.)

Sunkist Pastry

3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
Sift together. Cut in:
1 cup shortening
Add:
1 slightly beaten egg, combined with 3 tablespoons lemon juice
Add gradually:
Ice water—just enough to bind dough together

Roll pastry out thin and line pie plates. Bake in hot oven (475 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. (Makes three 8-inch single pie shells. Keep unbaked dough in refrigerator until needed.)

Holiday Specials

There are plenty of holidays this time of year. Each one calls for at least a couple of "new" dishes for the dinner. They will stand out among the regular holiday foods like a blooming rose bush on a withered lawn.

Here are two delicious and economical desserts that are surely seasonable:

Date Rennet-Custard

1 household rennet tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
1 pint milk (ordinary or homogenized)
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
20 dates

Maraschino cherries
Set out 4 or 5 individual dessert glasses. Dissolve rennet tablet by crushing in cold water in a cup. Cut dates into small pieces. Mix well with one-half cup slightly warmed milk. Press through coarse strainer. Add strained dates and sugar to remaining 1½ cups milk. Warm slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm (120 degrees F.), not hot, remove at once from stove. Add dissolved rennet tablet and stir quickly for a few seconds only. Pour at once, while still liquid, into dessert glasses. Do not move until firm—about 10 minutes. Then chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve, garnish with slices of dates and maraschino cherries arranged like a flower, using the dates for petals and the cherries for the center.

Cream Cranberry Compote

1 package vanilla rennet powder
1 cup milk (ordinary or homogenized)
1 cup light cream
¼ cup cranberry sauce
Make rennet-custards according to directions on package, using 1 cup milk and 1 cup cream instead of 1 pint of milk. Then chill in refrigerator.

When ready to serve, put 1 tablespoon of cranberry sauce on each dish of rennet-custard.

Beefsteak with Oysters

1 steak
1 quart oysters
1 tablespoon sifted flour
3 tablespoons butter or butter substitute

Set the oysters, with a very little of their juice, over the fire; when they come to a boil, remove any scum and stir in the butter or butter substitute in which the sifted flour has been rubbed. Boil one minute, pour over the steak and serve at once.

Lemon Mince-meat

½ cup lemon juice
1 cup raisins, scalded, drained and chopped
3 cups finely chopped apple
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup lemon or orange marmalade
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon ginger

Combine ingredients. To make pies, add:

¼ cup melted butter for each pie. May be sealed and kept in sterilized jars. (Makes 1 quart or filling for 2 pies.)

Baked Hamburg Steak

1½ pounds beef round
2 cups bread soaked in milk
1 small onion
1 tablespoon butter or butter substitute
2 eggs
4 hard-cooked eggs
1 cup tomatoes
½ cup sliced onion
Salt, pepper, ginger

Chop the meat fine. Add the bread, one minced onion, seasonings to taste and the two uncooked eggs, well-beaten. Arrange the hard-cooked eggs end to end across the middle of the meat and roll the meat mixture around them. Place the roll in a baking pan, pour over it a sauce composed of the tomatoes, sliced onions, butter or butter substitute and water, and bake, basting frequently with sauce. In serving, slice the roll crosswise. The hard-cooked eggs may be omitted.

Year 'Round Fresh Fruit Cup

(Serves 6)
Combine:
2½ cups orange sections
1 cup banana slices
1 cup unpeeled, red-skinned apple slices
With:
1 cup orange juice
Dash of lemon juice
Sugar or honey to taste
Cherries for garnish
Rice Fan-Tan
½ cup rice
2 cups milk

½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
½ cup candied fruits
Egg and crumbs
Powdered sugar

Cook rice in milk until very soft. Stir in salt, sugar and well-beaten egg, and remove at once from the fire. Mix in assorted candied fruits—cherries, apricots and pineapple—and turn into a shallow, well-oiled pan to cool. When firm, cut into strips about one and one-half inches wide and three inches long, dip in egg and bread crumbs and brown delicately on both sides in butter or butter substitute. Drain, dust with powdered sugar and serve hot.

Orange Candied Yams

4 medium-sized yams
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons melted butter

Wash yams and boil until tender. Peel and cut in halves lengthwise. Place in buttered baking dish. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over yams. Bake about 1 hour in slow oven (300 degrees F.). Baste several times during baking with syrup in dish. Garnish with slices of unpeeled oranges. Serves 4.

CORRECT SIZE OF HOSE IS NEEDED FOR GOOD SERVICE

By Miss Edna Stephany
Home Economics Representative

This is a quiz age—men and women, boys and girls are asking questions. Among the leading questions are those women ask about hosiery—why stockings run, and why they wear out at the heels and toes.

In an attempt to make the average woman's hosiery shopping easier, some of the most puzzling questions are answered.

Q. Why do heels of hose slip down under the foot?

A. The size of the stocking may be too small or the heel cups of the stocking may be too small.

Q. Why do toes poke through?

A. The size of hose may be too small. A wide foot may require a larger size than the length of shoe would indicate. Be sure the toes of the stocking is well-reinforced. Rough, long nails will cut through the toes of the stockings.

Q. What can I do to prevent heels from wearing out?

A. Sometimes the lining of the shoe is rough or loose. Examine the top edge of the back of the shoe. A heel lining may help to keep the shoe from sliding or hold the edge away from the stocking. Rub cold cream on calloused spots if they are causing the hose to wear.

Q. Why do stockings break at the instep?

A. This may be due to too small a foot size.

Q. What is the most frequent cause of runs?

A. Catching the hose on chairs, fingernails, jewelry, or wearing garters fastened too tight or below the garter reinforcement.

Q. Are there any hose that will not run or catch?

A. There are run-proof hose, but any fabric will catch. Run-proof hose will not run, but the broken thread will make a hole. Run-proof hose have a small mesh-like pattern, which does not show as such when worn. These hose come in very sheer and heavier weights. There also are hose in larger mesh.

Q. Are stockings actually knit in different lengths?

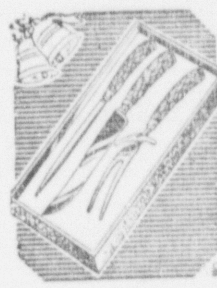

A. Yes, in three lengths: short, 25 inches, medium, 30 to 32 inches; and long, 34 inches. Cheap stockings are stretched to different lengths but will not retain this length after washing.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

"Let our talk always have a saving salt of grace about it." No insipid trivialities, but strong helpful words; no biting unkindly speech, but gracious healing words. Make us aware that our conversation is a revelation of ourselves. We talk about what we think about, and we think about what we are interested in. Renew a right spirit within us, then shall our mouth show forth Thy praise, Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The story of "Sky Devils," which comes to the Grand Theatre today has many unusual twists, and the dialogue sparkles with humor. It moves at a terrific tempo, from start to finish, and piles laugh upon laugh, and thrill upon thrill, as the action unfolds on the screen.

King Vidor launches his career as a full-fledged independent producer with "Hell's Cross Roads" the powerful human drama which is scheduled to come to the Grand Theatre Thursday and Friday.

The story concerns an average young city couple, down on their luck, who take a new lease on life and love when they find themselves transplanted to a farm, and surround themselves with a group of disinherited folks, like themselves, from all walks of life.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Dorothy Brandon's engrossing drama, "The Outsider," is now at the Bristol Theatre. This new triumph co-stars Mary Maguire and George Sanders. Miss Maguire plays the role of a talented, crippled girl whose case has been deemed by eminent surgeons as "hopeless," and Mr. Sanders will be seen as the unorthodox healer, Ragatzky, whose amazing cures have both puzzled and enraged the whole medical profession.

Peter Murray Hill, Barbara Blair, Frederick Lester, P. Kynaston Reeves, Walter Hudd, and Ralph Truman appear in important roles in the support.

RITZ THEATRE

You can cook or you can act, but you can't do both in Hollywood. Such was the discovery of beautiful Katharine Aldridge who is featured in "Girl From Avenue A," the Jane Withers starring picture which is at the Ritz Theatre.

"It's not that they don't trust my cooking, but so many times minor burns and injuries that every cook undergoes hold up production on a picture," says Katharine.

"Girl From God's Country" a motion picture based on the Saturday Evening Post story, "Island Doctor," is now at the Ritz Theatre. The film was directed by Sidney Salkow under Associate Producer Armand Schaefer.

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By

Helen Koues

Decorating Your Christmas Table

Believe it or not, it costs a dollar or less to make an unusual Christmas table. The one shown below for instance, with a bit of ingenuity, crepe paper, cotton batting, marshmallows, didn't even cost a dollar.

Why not plan a novel decoration for the Christmas table? Something the grownups will like because it's festive and sets the day apart, and something the children will love!

Instead of using your regular table cloth or doilies, follow the suggestion given in the picture for a novel arrangement. A strip of red crepe paper, fluted on the edges, is used as a runner for the center of the table. Make place mats to match with the same fluted edges. Use cellophane or some type of glittering place mat which you can get at the chain stores to cover the crepe paper mats, to give sparkle to the table. A centerpiece is all important. The little snow-laden house is made from a cardboard box held together with transparent glue tape and covered with red brick paper. The windows are outlined in strips of bright red paper and the chimney is another small box inserted into the roof covered in red brick pattern paper, with cotton batting forming its snow covered roof. A bountiful chimney is sprouting Christmas favors. These are little heads of old Santa, suspended with tinsel strands from bits of wire secured to the chimney.

HELEN KOUES

A novel centerpiece for your Christmas table

The children will love to find a bit of candy or some tiny toy in each one—a surprise when dinner is over. Not only the children, but any member of the family with a sweet tooth, will eye with interest the place cards made of marshmallows. Four and one half marshmallows make up this enticing snow man; two for his feet, one for his body, one for his head and one cut in half for each arm. Bits of candied cherries form the buttons of his coat, his mouth, while citron makes the other features. Or, red can be the entire color scheme. A red cellophane bow, under his chin, adds a Christmas dash. You will also find in your nearby stores, various types of Christmas candles. Here stars were used in semi circles at each end of the house, placed on little glass coolers. Any glass dish would be satisfactory and any Christmas candle would be as pretty. They may be white or red, or green.

For napkins use squares of the red crepe paper. Two rolls of red crepe paper at 15c each, one roll of brick paper at 15c, 6 candles at 5c each and a box of marshmallows at about 10c and the favors at five cents each, brings this gay Christmas table decoration to about $1.10.

There are lots of ways to vary it. Instead of the house, a pile of shiny Christmas tree balls could be used, or fruit could be piled around a tinsel covered basket acting as a grab bag from which tinsel cards attached to favors to be pulled, bring forth a silly rhyme or joke for each member of the family.

Heigh ho for Christmas!

BRISTOL MUST BUILD

Holdovers at Bensalem Threat
To Rival Loop
Teams

By Jack GHI

Boys who favor form and past experience shake a nodding head toward Morrisville's basketball quintet in the Lower Bucks scholastic league this winter. Although the important games do not occur until after the Christmas vacation period, the fickle form sheet figures John Hoffman's men as sure shot titlists.

But the league usually hinges on a two-game season series. Bristol and Morrisville, hurried, hectic, hot-shots on a basketball court, annually determine sectional laurels.

The locals must re-build a strong five to stave off the bid of Morrisville. Defending the championship that carried them into the Palestra and an eventual shellacking by Lower Merion, the proteges of Coach Tom Campion have a definite task ahead of them.

Two stellar performers, Steve Fiorito and Joe Quigley, were lost by graduation. Immediately robbing the Bunnies of towering strength, hope has been buoyed by the fact that out of the mass of candidates who have reported, several rangy lads are in evidence. Building his team around a fast, clever "spitfire" dead shot, Campion moulds all of his hopes around Tony "Chick" DiAngelo. Many junior varsity players are expected to bolster the outfit.

Morrisville, still celebrating its third football championship within a four-year span, has a host of returning veterans back to man the posts they played at during 1939. What a ball club they anticipate with such varsity men returning as Vince Da-Bronze, Beadle, Wilcox, Seltzer, Gandelman and Purcell.

Athletes in Lower Bucks high schools seemingly run in cycles. Not set specialists, they serve as versatile athletes, good in all three major sports. Morrisville, having dropped baseball, is definitely now only a two-sport school. Many men who played on the Bulldogs' title-winning grid eleven will undoubtedly be around to make things merry on the court this winter.

A new procedure will be in effect this season, with the league being divided into two groups. In one section, Morrisville, Bristol and Bensalem will form a league, while Fallsington, Buckingham and Southampton will compose the other division. At the end of the season, the winners of each group will play a series of games to determine the championship.

Coaches now realize that they must get in there when the gun sounds and play tight ball throughout to remain at the head of their league. For quite some time it was felt that Buckingham and Southampton were greatly outclassed by Bristol and Morrisville. Now they need not meet these teams unless they have a really strong representative. If this is the case they will get a deserved shot at the championship.

Coach Johnny Slaven, at Bensalem, has four of his first five men of last year returning for this season's ensemble. Never a powerhouse in district basketball circles, wrestling has always held sway at the Owl institution. However, with the returning strength available, optimism reigns.

Last season the Blue finished in its customary fourth place slot behind Fallsington. With a team that may be an all-senior aggregation, Bensalem may arise to a new position in court play.

Slaven has had his squad out for practice for two weeks now, and they looked impressive in a practice scrimmage against St. Francis. The quartet of veterans who will be starting, when Bensalem opens the season in the Owl gym, are Jack Hamor, Woodie Ritten-bourgh, Dick Colbert and Bob Scarborough. Only Bob Whyte is missing from last year's first five. Expecting to replace him with Mayhew Call, an operation stymied this move. Some of the more noticeable newcomers are Gene Ashton, Dick Naylor, Frank Kat-nola, Pete Everitt, Jim Patterson, George Hutton, Hugh Deans, Lenny Edlys and Bob Conover.

Coach Jim Doheny's Fallsington squad, beaten by Moorestown and the New Jersey Institute for the Deal, may benefit by the head start on other local clubs, but even Doheny admits he has nothing in the way of championship calibre. At that, it appears certain that he will have his club in the championship series at the season's finish. Monti and rangy Art Driscoll form the nucleus of his starting five.

But you never know what you have until after you've played a few games, according to local schoolboy coaches. Trying to rely on veterans may backfire into a nightmare due to over-confidence or natural ability arising in rival camps.

FALLS TWP. HIGH LOSES TO BORDENTOWN HIGH

BORDENTOWN, Dec. 19.—Still failing to shake the jinx that has been trailing it, the Falls Township High School basketball team lost its fourth straight game last night by bowing to the Bordentown High School, 29-25, in an exciting contest. All four defeats were administered to the Doheny-men by Jersey schools.

Only in the first and final periods did Bordentown outscore the losers and going into the last session saw Falls holding the edge, 22-20, but three measly points was all the Orange and Black could get in the last quarter.

Moon and Baker led the Falls' boys in scoring while "Cappie" Matthews scored 12 points to lead the Jerseyites to victory.

Coach Doheny fared better with his Jay Vee team as it scored a 24-15 victory over the Bordentown Jay Vees. Outplaying their opponents in the second half when it made 13 points to the Jerseyites' 6 gave the Falls boys the triumph.

Doyle, with nine points, was the star of this tilt with Kelly doing the best work for Bordentown.

State Gets Deed To Canal Property; Bristol to Easton

poses; and the legislation also provides that such portions of the canal property as are needed may be transferred to the Department of Highways in accordance with property legislation, and for approval of the government. No specific sections are designated for either park or highway purposes.

Senator James met with unexpected opposition to his bill in the Senate and had not been successful in overcoming this opposition. It is believed that the acquiring of the canal property by the Commonwealth would have met with failure, as opponents of the measure centered their fight against it in the Senate.

Secretary Stewart declared today that the primary reason for accepting the 60-mile stretch of canal for Pennsylvania at this time was to prevent a historic site from being divided by private individuals.

Stewart disclosed the existence of a power plant, owned by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., located on the canal at Rainsville, Northampton County.

"This power plant is located on the canal property and the water it uses comes from a dam in the canal. By this acquisition, the State will receive approximately $8,000 annually from rental and water supply to the company," he explained.

Gov. Arthur H. James, questioned concerning the proposed development of the property, said the state at the present time, "does not contemplate spending any money to convert the land into a park."

"We do not have the necessary funds to restore the canal," he pointed out, "but there are certain individuals in Bucks County who have strongly indicated their intentions to purchase other land along the canal, which will aid in the eventual development of the property."

Governor James amplified Stewart's statement, explaining that certain funds must necessarily be spent for surveys.

"The program for surveys and restoration of the canal might reasonably be expected to take two years. The State probably will have to spend some money for that," the Governor said. He declined to guess the amount of money needed to develop the property. Within the past few years the canal has been the subject of litigation between the State and the canal company, the courts finally ruling that the property belonged to the company. The 1939 Legislature authorized the State to take over the more than 100-year-old waterway when the Company agreed to transfer it without cost.

THE LOCKHEED P-38

If you saw this ship winging over your home, could you identify it? It is one of the U. S. aircraft industry's latest, most formidable contributions to national defense—the Lockheed P-38, a twin-engine interceptor pursuit designed to head off and break up hostile bombing raids as well as escort our own bombers on military missions. The P-38, one of the world's fastest aircraft, is readily identifiable by the two large booms which, replacing the conventional single fuselage, extend back to the twin tail assembly.

VOLUME OF MAIL AT SANTA CLAUS, IND., STUPENDOUS

Grows Daily At Post Office
In Town With the Magi-

THRICE ENLARGED
May Experience Handling of
Two Million Pieces of Mail

By International News Service

SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Dec. 19.—(INS)—This little hill town with the magical name today prepared to make its annual bid for national fame.

Day after day the volume of Christmas mail grows larger, according to Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips, who predicted a record business from mailers seeking to obtain the cheerful postmark of Santa Claus.

The little postoffice, which only a few years ago was just a chicken wire enclosed coop at the rear of the town's general store, was enlarged this summer to three times its original space and a modern front was installed in the building. At least a dozen rush postal employees will be on duty.

Phillips believes that the prosperity wave in this country and the dispatching of cheering words to American soldiers and to Hitler's prisoners of war may increase the mailings here to nearly two million pieces this year.

"I don't think we will be disturbed by the incorporation of North Pole, Minn., for Christmas mailing," Phillips commented. Curiously, one of the first pieces of mail received by Phillips this year was for a wide-awake resident of Sleepy Eye, Minn.

This hamlet, tucked away in the hills of Spencer County, will celebrate its first Christmas with electricity. This year the toy buildings have electric lights. Thousands of Christmas lights have been strung about the village, with each building in the toy town outlined in red, green, yellow and blue Yuletide lamps.

Visitors will be welcome at night. Heretofore, when darkness fell, the little town was left to its inhabitants.

There are many new attractions at the toy village this year. A new structure is the little white church with belfry and bell and the Star of Bethlehem over the steeple. The front of the church is all glass and within can be seen grassy meadows with more than 100 miniature sheep grazing on the hillside. In the background is a portrayal of the town of Bethlehem.

Inside the church, the nativity scene is depicted. The Christ child is in a crib surrounded by Biblical characters. Another appeal to the children has resulted from the start of construction of a "wooden shoe" building in honor of the old woman who lived in the shoe and had so many children that she didn't know what to do.

Also, the electric train building now includes two complete trains and tracks equipped with all types of stations and devices of modern railroad management.

Another feature is a Pinocchio diorama, brought to the Santa Claus Toy Village from the Golden Gate Exposition at San Francisco. This is an animated display depicting Pinocchio searching for the Golden Tree. As Pinocchio moves about, the Golden Tree magically appears and disappears.

Requests arrive in almost every mail to Postmaster Phillips asking him to impersonate Santa Claus. Accept? No, he'd never get the mail out if he were not adamant to all applicants.

Philatelists also are a burden to Postmaster Phillips. "Way back in 1895, a postal employee mistakenly reported the town's name as one word, 'Santaclaus.'"

On February 13, 1927, the name was divided officially into two words, "Santa Claus." It was learned that old envelopes bearing the single-word postmark have been sold for more than $100 each. Postmaster Phillips has explained to the disappointment of the philatelists that his office is barred from using this outmoded postmark.

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.

(Famous Hollywood Make-Up Specialist Writing for I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD.—(INS)—"As Hollywood goes, so goes the world," is a saying which will be more true during 1941 than ever before, simply because New York and Paris competition to Hollywood's supremacy as the glamour capital of the world has almost completely disappeared during the past two years.

Let us consider, then, the current Hollywood scene, and see what it portends for the feminine appearance of 1941.

In the film capital we can observe that the move toward the "natural" type of make-up and coiffure glamour, which got well under way about a year and a half ago, is being carried to even further degrees of naturalness and simplicity.

Confined to its make-up significance, this means that while feminine complexions are being cleansed, conditioned, and generally cared for just as much as ever before—if not even more so—the final appearance of these complexions will nevertheless not be discernable as "made-up" ones.

These natural appearing make-up results will be achieved by first taking full advantage of the preliminary complexion conditioning powers of such beauty aids as cleansing cream, skin fresheners, and make-up foundation.

This preliminary conditioning must then be supplemented by applying make-up with such a high degree of artistic delicacy that women won't look at all made-up.

In order to achieve this "un-made-up" make-up effect, make-up foundation must be applied evenly, and so thinly that the skin completely absorbs it. Range applications should be soft and delicate from the very beginning, and, once applied, should have their color even further softened by blending with the fingertips.

Liberal quantities of face powder should be originally applied, but then this material's surplus should be removed with an even greater degree of thoroughness than is now usually evident. This thorough removal of powder can only be accomplished with a powder brush.

Be sure that your powder brush administrations aren't ones which contact just the high spots of the powdered face. Brush over the face several times, reaching the complete surface. Don't be satisfied with your powder finish until all traces of flakiness have disappeared.

The smartest make-up of 1941 will be eyelash make-up and eye shadow much more delicately applied, and much less apparent than ever before.

The most modish lipstick application of 1941 will inevitably be in the true-color red shades, and applied in patterns which follow the natural contour of the lips. To further the desirable "natural" effect, it will be increasingly important that surplus lipstick be removed after application.

SCARSDALE, N. Y.—(INS)—John J. Phelan went hunting in Dutchess County, spied a deer with a good set of horns and felled it with one well aimed shot. One surprised huntsman was he, when, upon examination, the animal proved to be a doe. Game Warden Ed Townsend quoted the law permitting the killing of any deer with better than three-inch horns, found nothing illegal in Phelan's kill. The doe's horns measured a full 11 inches.

MONTICELLO, N. Y.—(INS)—Any one who has ever mislaid an appendix after its removal has an unusual opportunity to replace it with one that has withstood the test of time. Dr. John A. Miller, who recently retired after 53 years as a country doctor at Roscoe, N. Y., has 136 of them, preserved in alcohol. They are souvenirs of, in most cases, kitchen-table surgery.

AUTO INDUSTRY FACES MANY PROBLEMS NOW

Motor Leaders Find There Are Vast Differences in Building Autos and Airplane Plants

MUCH DEFENSE WORK

By Russell Fuller

(U. S. S. Staff Correspondent)

DETROIT, Dec. 19. — (INS) — Faced with the tremendous task of adopting itself to producing airplane parts for the nation's defense program, the automobile industry already has launched a preparatory agenda involving long hours of research.

The three most important steps in the preparatory venture, according to leading figures in the industry, are:

1—Engineering exploration of present aviation construction methods.

2—Adaptation of these methods to the automotive facilities that will be available.

3—Development of manufacturing plans by drawing from many plants—a synchronized flow of readily assembled, matching parts.

At the same time, automobile manufacturers are quick to declare that even though they will make only parts and not participate in final assemblies of aircraft, the problems to be surmounted are many.

A booklet issued by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, speaks thusly:

"Airplane construction is probably as much unlike the building of an automobile as the latter differs from house construction. The fuselage and wings of the plane must stand stresses in their daily operation to which the automobile body is never subjected.

"Most important is the absolute requirement that weight must be reduced to a minimum, calling for use of metals that have extraordinary strength, but only a fraction of the weight of automobile panels and frames.

"The big planes of modern bombing types are so complicated in design and construction that some engineers tend to compare them more closely with a small battleship or submarine than to an automobile.

"A passenger car weighs a ton and a half or two tons. A bombing plane of the largest type, despite being built of extremely light-weight materials, will weigh 20 tons.

"Size alone would preclude automobile and truck plants from taking over this complete construction job, even if the specialized engineering involved did not compel expert aeronautical supervision and management."

The booklet points out that "the task is one in which airplane builders, military experts and automobile production men will have to work together."

To ease future operations and to preclude any one company from shouldering a lion's share of the burden, the several industries engaged in manufacturing automobile and truck production as well as makers of bodies and tools and dies and jigs have joined together in a central agency.

Along the same line, the motor manufacturers have agreed to subordinate to the defense assignment, usual annual progressive developments in their own field.

If the manufacturers find that next year's automobile models can be improved without impeding defense work, such improvements will be made. But if the research and production usually turned into those channels can be directed into defense lanes then the latter course will be followed and the motoring public will have to go along accordingly.

Defense Commissioner William S. Knudsen has told the manufacturers that $500,000,000 in airplane parts contracts will be turned over to them if they think they can handle the job. The manufacturers have assured Knudsen that, given time, they can do just that.

Knudsen wants to swing into production early in 1941. Whether his idea on this subject materializes depends entirely on the speed with which the auto industry can accelerate itself along its new venture.

The Great Game of Politics

ish people have borne the increasing bombing of their cities has baffled the enemy and made the English seem an unconquerable people.

THEY can put the Italians to rout; they can stand up under the German bombing; they can defend their island from invasion. But there is one thing against which they cannot stand up—to wit, starvation. That is not humanly possible, and no one believes England can suffer, indefinitely, shipping losses of more than 60,000 tons a week and survive. Last week official figures put the loss at over 100,000 tons. Too great a proportion of her food has to be brought to her in boats to stand this very long. Probably, in the end, the British will find a way to meet this menace as they did in the last war when, though the Germans did not know it, they were within three weeks of the exhaustion of food supplies. While the Germans then had no submarine bases on the English Channel and the French and Italian fleets were allies, still it was a close call; and the British said so—after the victory.

BAD as things now look, there is no need to despair—no excuse to assume, as some of our returned diplomats have done, that "England is doomed." England is not doomed, but she is in great danger and there is no sense in not saying so. When Lord Lothian said that his country could win only with our aid, it was the typical British way of saying that unless she got more aid quickly she was lost. Very clearly he pointed out what that would mean to us. But he did not have to. Every intelligent man and woman in the country knows without being told. The conviction that the salvation of England is vital to our safety is the basis of our foreign policy of aid to Britain. It was voiced as loudly and insistently in the last campaign by Mr. Wilkie as by Mr. Roosevelt. It is the reason Secretary of State Hull is pounding so hard and so steadily for every possible aid to Britain short of actual physical conflict with her enemy.

WHAT is the logic of this situation? Clearly, the logic is to repeal the laws—and to lose no time about it—which prevent us from convoys, with American warships, ships containing food and munitions for England, and to use our own boats for transporting those supplies. Clearly, the intelligent—and selfish—thing to do is to use our own navy and our own shipping to relieve the British of the heavy convoy duty so that she can use her destroyers to more adequately deal with the submarines which threaten her life line.

THE contention is that to do this sort of thing would involve us in the war. It is a step, it is said, which Germans would construe as actively hostile. Of course it is,

It's Cold - - - Serve Hot Dishes

Cold dishes are all right for summer, but the "men folks" especially, demand plenty of hot foods when the temperature is low. Here are two delicious hot dinner dishes that may be prepared by those fortunate enough to have a few cans of cooked dried Limas on the emergency shelf—and what modern woman hasn't?

Limas Escalloped
2 cups cooked, dried Limas
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Fine bread crumbs
Dash of paprika
1 cup milk

Put the Limas in buttered baking dish and seasonings, pour over the milk sprinkle top with fine bread crumbs and dot with bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown—about 20 minutes. If desired, one-half cup grated cheese may be sprinkled over Limas before adding bread crumbs.

Limas With Cheese Sauce
2 cups cooked, dried Limas
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon minced onion
2/3 cup shredded cheese
1 cup milk

Heat milk in top of double boiler. Add cheese and stir until melted. Combine Limas with seasonings, and add to the cheese mixture. Continue to cook until Limas are thoroughly heated. Serve at once with garnish of parsley.

MANHATTAN SOAP TEAM VICTORS OVER ROHM & HAAS

Soap-Makers Win Hectic And Thrilling Battle On The Mutual Aid Floor

FINAL SCORE IS 40 TO 39

A Triple Deadlock Now Exists Among Teams For First Place

After winning four straight games, the Rohm & Haas quintet was stopped last night on the Italian Mutual Aid floor as the Manhattan Soap A. A. eked out a one-point victory, 40-39, in one of the most thrilling and hectic court games ever played on the Wood Street floor.

The defeat to the chemical workers which was a little surprise made a triple deadlock for first place in the Bristol Basketball League. The teams now sharing this honor are: Profy's, Manhattan and Rohm & Haas.

Incidentally, it was the fourth consecutive win for the soap-makers who have not been beaten since they dropped their opening verdict to the Profy team.

The Rohm and Haas team proved that it was not a quitting five last night as with but four minutes remaining to be played in the final quarter, they fought all the way despite the fact that they were eight points behind the Manhattan score.

Cole started some kind of a rally by sinking a foul shot. Roe followed with a long shot and when Cahill did the same thing, the Manhattan lead was shaved to three points. Huffnell was injured on a scrumpage play and time out was called.

Referee Morgan consulted with Timer Tentilucci and found that but forty seconds remained to be played. The ball was close to the Rohm and Haas basket and a tap-off between Huffnell and Everett was necessary. Everett's height gave him the jump and he tapped to Roe. Roe was blocked by Gallagher so he quickly passed to Cahill who shot and missed. But Cole was under the basket and grabbed the sphere and rebounded it off the backboard into the basket to make the score 40-39 just as the final horn sounded.

The Manhattan team played better ball than it exhibited all season. Their passing was well-timed and the sharpshooters seemed to have found their eye for during most of the game, the Manhattaners were in the van.

The Radcliffe Street aggregation was strengthened by the acquisition of "Reds" Byers, former star of the Morrisville Simpsons. Byers did not do much scoring, netting but one field goal, but that happened to be the deciding twin-pointer of the night. Just previous to scoring the deciding goal, Byers whipped a bullet pass to Huffnell for another score.

Doing most of his shooting from long range, "Hunkie" Gallagher made five double-deckers for the winners. Zeffries also had ten points, getting a quartet of goals as well as a pair of gift shots.

The margin of the Manhattan victory was decidedly from the foul line. The Maple Beach team faltered from the fifteen foot mark as it made but five goals in fifteen tries while the soapmen sank in six out of their nine attempts.

Joie Roe and Johnny Cole with eleven and ten points respectively led the losing team in scoring with Cahill's 8 points close behind.

SLAVEN'S SHOOTING GIVES VICTORY TO THE PROFY TEAM

Auto Boys Defeated When Slavin Cuts Loose In Third Period

GAME ENDS 35 TO 24

Sak and McGinley Play Good Defensive Game For Their Team

"Johnny" Slaven's third period shooting gave the Profy team its victory over the Auto Boys last night in the first game played on the Italian Mutual Aid floor.

Until Slaven started his scoring orgy, the Auto Boys were making a close match of the affair but Johnny ripped the nets for four field goals in the fatal session which was enough to give the radiomen a 35-24 win.

At half-time, when Slaven was doing a lot of floorwork but little shooting, the Auto Boys managed to play the Profy team even with a 9-9 count. At the end of the third quarter after Slaven took the offensive the figures were 27-15 with Profy's having the large number.

Slaven's scoring for the night totaled him 14 points, he having six field goals and two fouls. He was by far the outstanding scorer of the tilt as Vince Profy of the Auto Boys made eight points to be second high man.

Sak and McGinley played good defensive ball for their team. It was the third defeat of the season for the Auto Boys and the fourth victory for Profy's who have lost one game, that to Rohm and Haas.
